100% Free Recruiting Information for Athletes and Parents

CBound was formed to provide free information and online tools to help athletes and their families navigate the recruiting process. CBound is an informational guide, and is 100% free, with no solicitation for payment for any of the information provided

It is CBound's mission that families should have minimal, if any expense, for the recruiting process. In that spirit, CBound was designed to get core information to the athlete's family, and with that - and the support of their coaches - should be all that is needed to manage the recruiting process.

The web site includes three main components:

- CBound's Resource Center provides a variety of information and tools to help athletes and their parents work through the recruiting process. These include a 14-chapter online Powerpoint presentation (CBound's Inside The Process) that takes the user step-by-step through the recruiting. There are also action-item, recruiting timelines for both the athlete and the coaches, sample letters and e-mails, a listing of some of the questions that should be asked of coaches, and many other features.
- CBound Schools offers a directory and community resource to get information on collegiate programs. This includes a search feature to find programs of interest, as well as direct links to the school and athletic sites. In addition, the site offers community features. One is a comment area to share thoughts and comments on the program, school, team, etc... A second feature offers the ability to send a note to another CBound user to ask questions about a program, or posted comment.
- @CBound on Twitter is an informational source for reminders and advice, as well as providing an opportunity for parents and athletes to ask and get answered their recruiting questions.
